Building Supports Project

Presentation Overview

• Project Goal and Overview
• Phase I Research findings à key themes
• Phase III / the policy component
• Method
• Presentations on the three sector findings:
  • Immigration/Settlement
  • Housing
  • Health
• Recommendations
• Action Plans

Project Overview: Overall Goal

To understand the barriers in accessing safe short- and long-term housing for immigrant and refugee women leaving violent relationships, and to examine promising practices that can facilitate the removal of barriers to safe, secure and affordable housing.

• To examine relevant policies to determine where policy solutions might be found in possible collaborative initiatives to secure that goal
• Ideas from which concrete action plans can be developed

Project Overview: Phases

• Phase 1:
  • What are the experiences of immigrant and refugee women in attempting to secure housing that is safe, affordable and culturally appropriate after leaving domestic violence?
  • Result: Phase I Report
• Phase 2:
  • What practices can be developed to improve front-line workers’ ability to support immigrant and refugee women in accessing longer-term safe, affordable and culturally-appropriate housing based on knowledge generated from Phase 1?
  • Result: Promising Practices Guide
• Phase 2b: "You Are Not Alone" Awareness Campaign
• Phase 3:
  • What provincial, and select federal, policy solutions can be created to reduce or eliminate the barriers that exist for immigrant and refugee women in accessing long-term housing?
  • Result: Policy Frame and Analysis
Phase I Research Findings – Key Themes

Policy Analysis: An Overview

Primary Topic Focus
Safe housing for immigrant and refugee women leaving violence.

Goal of Policy Analysis
How best to secure the short- and long-term, affordable, safe and secure housing for immigrant and refugee women leaving violence

Overarching Policy Values

Policy Intent:
The goal is to support and protect those individuals at risk (i.e., women’s safety and security)

Charter Section 15 equality rights values:
• 15(1) Every individual is equal before and under the law and has the right to the equal protection and equal benefit of the law without discrimination and, in particular, without discrimination based on race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, sex, age or mental or physical disability.

Policy Analysis Overview

Sectors Examined:
1. Housing, which is the predominant lens;
2. Immigration, settlement, and integration;
3. Health and well-being.

Critical Themes Throughout
While many themes and barriers arise throughout the analysis, some of which are sector-based (i.e., housing, immigration and settlement, or health-specific), many critical themes are overlapping and intersectional.

Of these, some of the key themes highlighted throughout the analysis are:
1. gender issues and gendered nature of the immigrant and refugee experience (including the violence);
2. well-being of children;
3. financial (in)security (including employment);
4. safety and well-being;
5. language and cultural competency;
6. Awareness of available services, rules, & timeline(s) for applications
7. Also examining intersectionalities and the interconnected nature of commonalities and gaps.

Intersecting Systems and the I&R Experience
Sources of Information

- The sources of information that comprise the Phase III policy analysis and report are:
  - Phase I Results from interviews, surveys, and focus groups;
  - Advisory Committee Phase II Workshop summary;

- A systematic literature review, which included over 150 relevant policies, government reports, sector reports, and peer-reviewed journal articles.

- Interviews conducted with 14 key stakeholders

Immigration/Settlement Analysis

- Settlement Services:
  - Are often the first point of contact for these women, and the first agency to assist in the IRW’s journey.
  - Key access point for IRW.

- Abuse may proceed with that initial entry, or it may begin once in Canada.

- The sponsorship arrangement,
  - whereby the woman and her children are sponsored by a partner who is already in Canada, can itself trigger the abuse which can take many forms, and can manifest not just as physical abuse but financial and psychological as well.
  - Recent shifts in sponsorship laws

Gender Issues & the Gendered nature of the IRW Experience

CRITICAL THEMES

Within immigrant and refugee groups there are different experiences based on gender, culture, status, sexual orientation, but overall, they can share common stressors, barriers, and vulnerabilities (e.g., housing, health, settlement) within the broader context of their status and their experiences of abuse.

In order to assure all the rights of the women from those differing locations are being treated with substantive equality; however, attention should be paid to those differences.

- In 2013, the Canadian Council for Refugees raised a concern over labour and market needs to say that the government was moving toward short-term labour needs and how that especially affected women and girls.
- While the Canadian Experience Class offers a pathway to permanent status for some workers, statistics show that the class is less accessible to women.
CRITICAL THEMES

Safety/Threat/Fear of Deportation – Sanctuary City?

Although Vancouver is seen to be a “sanctuary city,” it can fail to meet this designation because of potential disjunctures between provincial and federal agencies’ policies and procedures for IRW leaving abuse – which may actually be counterproductive to each other’s policy intents.

- For example, a non-status woman may have secured a place in a provincially funded Transition House, and be given an extension to her 30-day stay.
- The CBSA, however, may show up at their door to remove the woman for deportation, even if she might currently be in the process of making an application for a more permanent status.

Legal Aid: A Charter Issue?

There are minimal legal aid supports and resources available to immigrant and refugee women.

- While knowledge of available systems and laws operates as a barrier for immigrant and refugee women, the lack of legal aid support available to these populations further hinders their ability to navigate and/or receive support from Canadian legal systems.

British Columbia Government needs to fulfill its obligations under the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, the UN Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, and the UN International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. By providing adequate funds to Legal Services Society to ensure that those who have legitimate needs for legal representation on serious family or immigration matters and cannot afford to pay for it are able to obtain legal representation through Legal Aid.

CRITICAL THEMES

Child Protection & Family Justice System Issues

Specific to the child protection issue, it has been argued that understanding and responding to refugee families presents a significant challenge for child protection agencies.

- This is in large part because of the multiple intersectionality problems those families often experience, such as PTSD, settlement issues, lack of natural support networks, housing, employment, and language and cultural barriers.

Children emerge as a primary focus in the BC Family Law Act in which the “best interests of the child” is the governing policy intent.

- Section 13 of the Child, Family and Community Service Act (CFCSA) also lists a number of grounds under which a child may be in need of protection. An Amendment to this section includes reference to domestic violence.
- Re-examine H&C applications regarding interpretation of the best interest of the child(ren) provision.

Summary of Analyses

Key Indicators of Success

1) Welcoming communities,
2) Accessible/affordable/sustainable/adequate housing (i.e., temporary and long-term accommodations),
3) Access to language and skill-based education (i.e., support, opportunities),
4) Sufficient employment and income,
5) And community integration.
Collaboration & Coordination

1) amongst government ministries (at both provincial and federal levels);
2) between government and community-based agencies;
3) amongst community-based agencies.

This includes coordination of timelines and procedures for applications, other documentation.

The need for sharing of information to facilitate the processes.

Critical Themes

- Safety & well-being
- Well-being of children
  - E.g., no-child(ren) policies, poor quality of housing/neighborhoods, poverty, overcrowding, homelessness.
- Financial (in)security & poverty
  - Primary predictors of homelessness
- Language & cultural competency
  - Barriers to service provision
  - Culturally appropriate and competent service provision is paramount in creating connections between service providers and newcomer populations.
Challenges to Providing Affordable Housing

Supply
- The second major issue is the one of integration and collaboration.
- As one example of integration, in 2009, there was an integration of the Emergency Shelter Program and transition housing into the BC Ministry of Housing portfolio.
- In the 2014 report, Housing Matters BC, a specific client-centered approach was set out to better meet the needs of individuals in need of housing. In that regard, collaborating with non-profits is critical because that sector manages over 90% of the social housing stock and understands community needs.

Affordability
- A third key issue is affordability. It is first necessary to have the setup of a funding framework within the province that is flexible enough to incorporate IRW's needs.
- But as well, it is important to have better communications among services. For example, it may be that community services are unaware that non-profit settlement services have funding that they can and do dole out to provide financial supplements.
